

The Carmel Pine Cone

Only 18 More Days . . .

By MARJORY LLOYD

Carmel schoolchildren have only 18 more days of summer vacation left. On September 6 they will assemble for the first time this school year at whichever of the five schools in the Carmel Unified School District they will attend for the next nine months. The first classes begin for some students at the High School at 8:00 o'clock. All the other schools start at 9:00. Transportation for pupils in outlying sections will be provided by the two school buses owned by the district. The rest of the students must manage to arrive on their own, using whatever varied transportation they can arrange, or "hoofing it."

What will they find when they arrive at either, Bay, River, Sun-set, Woods or the High School? The Pine Cone this week decided to find out.

No matter which school they attend, they will find the school in a beautiful setting. Scenic beauty is all about the five Carmel schools and though most of the students will, no doubt, as normal children, be so busy with living that they will not stop, bemused and bewildered, to gaze abstractedly at the beauty of their surroundings, they cannot but be aware of the hills and the ocean and the trees, the fields, the river, the unusual informal city all about them. This is an intangible asset of the Carmel Unified School District and of the students' school life, which, to judge from reports of adult graduates, who have travelled and lived all over the world, they carry through life as a deep emotional value.

The Pine Cone decided to begin at the beginning of the school system—Bay School—the beginning, because, here Rosa Doner, with the help of the children's parents, especially their mothers, will conduct the Carmel Co-operative Nursery School for the Carmel Unified District's youngest pupils. Twenty-five students (there are still openings for four), will gather each morning in the remodelled one-room schoolhouse which has existed for 75 years beside the eucalyptus trees at the mouth of San Jose Creek, but has only been in the Carmel district two years. Ocean and beach extend along the back of the school while in front and at the side of the school-yard are the sweeping fields of the Fish and Riley ranches, the first an operating western cattle ranch, the second an active dairy farm. Point Lobos is almost in the school grounds and Highway 1 is one boundary of the school-yard. This is the first year that the Nursery School, operated under the Adult Education Program, has been situated at Bay, which this spring was deemed uneconomic to run as a first-four grades school in the elementary department of the district. Re-modelling under the voluntary direction of architect Francis Palms has gone on for some weeks. Mrs. Doner, fathers and mothers of the pupils working together to make it ready for September 6. On Tuesday afternoon, River School where children attend kindergarten and the first four grades, came next on the tour. Situated on the bottom lands adjacent to the Carmel River mouth, Point Lobos and the hills at the valley entrance, and along the shore, loom in the background of the school's outlook. All around are the homes and gardens of the Mission Tract with Carmel proper hidden in the pine trees growing on the southerly slope of town.

Here was a tremendous amount of activity. Construction of the new wing of the school was in full progress. Architect Thomas Elston expects to have two new rooms ready for school opening, but the contractors have had difficulty obtaining lumber and construction of the new four-room unit will not be completed for some time. River is Carmel's newest school, a long, low, modern building, which, when finished will consist of two units facing one another across a large central court with a covered breezeway extending the length of each unit and joining the two together.

Citizens' Committee To Take 12 Question Quiz As Guide To Plan Policy

After three days of individual conferences with city council and planning commission members, Larry Livingston, Jr., city planning consultant whom the city council has retained to devise a master plan for Carmel, met with the planning commission Wednesday afternoon, to make the following recommendations, which the commission approved:

Editor's Column

M-Day keeps creeping up on us, and it will actually, terribly be here next Thursday, August 25 (M for moving, when the Pine Cone picks up its presses and goes to live one block farther south on Dolores Street, in the white building where the Red Cross used to be).

The distress of our neighbors over losing us is touching. Paul McKinstry next door wants to know, "How long are you going to paralyze business and tie up traffic while you haul that equipment out?" Jack Miller, cater-corner across the street, has expressed his grief by hanging cocky little red and white awnings that have been shouting hip, hip, hooray at us all week. Never mind, grapevine has it that prospective new neighbors, Harold and Walter Nielsen, and Gene and Parvin have made arrangements with the Carmel String Ensemble to serenade us when we arrive, and we understand the P.G.&E. has a big surprise in store for us.

The Alarm Corporation, which has the cable T.V. franchise in Carmel, has notified the planning commission that its trial above ground transformer box, disguised as a bench for weary wayfarers, has been installed at the corner of Casanova and Eleventh streets. If the joint council and planning commission landscape committee approves the looks of it, the council will repeal the ordinance that a previous council passed, which required the T.V. people to install their transformers underground. The Alarm Corporation will then dig up and put on the sidewalks throughout the residence district 26 transformers which are now underground, and as many more as they wish in the future.

Appearance-wise the transformer bench is not a bad piece of furniture, a coffin-shaped redwood box with metal work trim. But as one citizen commented, "It looks fine, but if it were an antique Chippendale chair, I still wouldn't want 26 of them on the Carmel sidewalks."

This parallels the sentiment about parking meters. There have been some quaint, interesting, even attractive designs thought up for Carmel parking meters, but Carmel people just don't want stuff on their sidewalks, no matter how handsome it may be. Our trees and shrubs forming vistas of natural beauty are quite enough decoration.

But it is for the council to decide.

That the planning commission recommend to the city council it pass an interim zoning ordinance which would require all building permits for new commercial structures to come before the planning commission and be reviewed by the city council. The purpose is to prevent "a rush to get under the wire" while changes in the ordinance code are under discussion but not yet effective.

That the commission adopt a policy of going to Salinas in a body, taking a militant citizens group with them, to back up their recommendations to the county planning commission on subdivision plans. Heretofore, the county commission has ignored Carmel Planning Commission's suggestions for modification.

That the following questions be submitted to a citizens' committee, to be appointed by the council, the answers to assist Livingston in determining a policy in formulating the master plan for Carmel.

1. Should the plan be aimed at preserving Carmel's unique character, regardless of its effect on other objectives of the planning program?

2. Can the tourist trade be maintained (or increased) and the community's character preserved at the same time?

3. How important is the tourist trade to the community's economy? (Consider City, County and School District tax bases.)

4. Should tourists be encouraged, discouraged or simply tolerated?

5. In reviewing new subdivisions, should we try to make them harmonize with the community's character?

6. Should areas of natural beauty be preserved by public acquisition?

7. Should the plan provide for additional regional recreation facilities, such as large parks and beaches?

8. Should the plan provide for neighborhood recreation facilities?

9. Should the plan designate a civic center site where a new City Hall, auditorium and other community facilities would eventually be located?

ADULT LEAGUE STANDINGS

	Won	Lost
Police	3	2
Firemen	3	2
Pros	2	3
Lions	1	4

Chief Klaumann's Carmel Police softball team hung a 5-4 defeat on the Old Pros Tuesday night to go into a deadlock with the Firemen for first place in the Adult League. Top spot was at stake in this game as the Pros and Police were tied in the runner-up position. A good pitching duel developed throughout the game as Special Officer Tobiassen and Bill Wakefield were bearing down with all their stuff. The crafty Tobiassen gained the nod at the finish as his mates, led by Howard Timbers and Dick Sumner, put on a stirring sixth-inning rally to pull out the win. Timbers, once an Old Pro but lost to the Police via the draft route, hit a solid 3 for 4 off the blazing deliveries of Wakefield, while Sumner tagged the right-hander for 2 solid safeties.

A playoff game to decide the second-half winner will be played next Wednesday night. If the Firemen win the playoff game, they will be 1955 Champs, but if the Police win, the two teams will play another game as the Firemen were champions of the first-half play.

Mary Benton

Dr. Mary L. Benton, internationally known educator, and aunt of Mrs. Zenas L. Potter of Carmel, died on August 12 in Berkeley at the age of 91.

A frequent visitor to Carmel in past years Dr. Benton had many friends in the community. She was born in Mount Lebanon in Syria, February 26, 1864, one of seven children of her missionary parents, Reverend and Mrs. William Austin Benton. She came to America at the age of five and received her higher education at the University of Minnesota. Following graduation she taught briefly at the University of Minnesota and at Mills College in California. Upon leaving Mills College Dr. Benton went to France and taught English in French lycees. She returned to the United States in 1897 and was professor of Latin and French at Smith College for many years.

Interested in the initiation of the foreign student exchange program, Dr. Benton, at the close of the first World War, selected for the United States Department of Education, the first French girls to attend American universities.

This work was interrupted, temporarily, when she went to Lithuania to estimate relief aids there for the YMCA and Red Cross. Dr. Benton was the first woman of the Allied nations to cross Germany following World War I and later, when Alsace-Lorraine was restored to France, was present at the ceremonies attended by General Pershing and Marshal Foch.

In 1914 she was awarded a Doctor of Humanities degree by Smith College and was called to be Dean of Women at Carleton College in Minnesota.

Upon her retirement Dr. Benton came to California to live, making her home first in Oakland and then in Berkeley.

Relatives surviving Dr. Benton, besides Mrs. Potter, are her nephew, ex-Senator William Benton of Connecticut, and the following nieces, Mrs. Margaret Clark-Williams of Paris, France; Mrs. Ernest Colegrove and Mrs. Charles Sutherland of Bronxville, New York.

A memorial service was held at the Plymouth Congregational Church in Oakland on Sunday.

Charles Conrad Mohler Born

Telegrams which Charles Mohler, associate editor for the publishing firm of Rinehart and Company, sent across the country on Saturday announced that Charles Conrad Mohler had been published at 5:45 o'clock that morning, handsomely illustrated, with an informative map, and that authoress, Hazel Mohler, was signing autographs at the Peninsula Community Hospital. This was the first child for the Mohlers, who last year left their Carmel home for a trip through South America, where they were photographed by the Pan-American World Airways publicity department as the average ideal American couple. Incidentally, Chuck took a letter to Hazel on Monday informing her that an article which she had written about the South American oven bird, which she observed at that time, had been accepted for publication by Nature Magazine. Young Charles Conrad's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mohler of Pomona, California, and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Dale of Moorhead, Minnesota.

Compliments of the Management

Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver and Mrs. Jeanie Klenke were special guests of the Savoy Opera Company's performance in San Francisco of the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, Pirates of Penzance, on Wednesday afternoon. As a school girl Miss Lindsay-Oliver was a protegee of Sir W. S. Gilbert. He had plans for her to sing in one of the performances and she had the opportunity to sing for him and Cellier on the stage of the Savoy Theater in London, and still has a bundle of his letters in her possession. H. L. Appleby, company manager, knowing all this, and also the fact that she is doing music criticisms for the Pine Cone, invited Miss Lindsay-Oliver to be his guest on Wednesday.

On Friday evening at 8:00 p.m., the public is invited to see Mrs. Bell start a new ceramic portrait, show one in progress, and demonstrate the intricacies of the casting process involved.

Mrs. Bell will then show how pottery is made in molds, finish a piece, and decorate it with one of her sculpted figurines.

The Carmel Craft Studios are on San Carlos Street, just South of Ocean Avenue.

(Continued from Page One) gathered at the western end of the structures, so that pupils may at all times move from building to building under cover. Jim Dixon, the custodian, was only too glad to show us around, with justifiable pride in the school under his charge. First of all we examined the new furniture provided for the new classrooms. This is a decided innovation in school equipment. The chairs, modern in design, come to fit the size of children in the first four grades, who will be housed in the new wing. The sizes are graduated according to the height of the seats of the chairs from the floor (they fit the length of the seated children's legs), and come in 11, 13, 15 and 17 inch sizes with corresponding single and double desk-tables. Very, very new and very attractive are the chairs in three colors, green, red and yellow with grey metal framework. The desks have blond plastic, simulated wood tops, set in similar grey metal framework, and will be mighty hard, even impossible, to carve with a penknife. "They'll mark them somehow, though," wistfully remarked custodian Dixon, as he went back to painting the low fence at the edge of the breezeway and we went up to the northern end of Carmel where the children of that section attend kindergarten, and the first four grades, at Woods School.

Woods School was built in 1949 and has begun really to fit into the landscape. It is a low modern structure designed with each classroom opening on to its own enclosed patio, or outdoor classroom, with shade provided in the center of the patio by a roof-like baffle. Walking through the archway to the other side of the building we found ourselves facing a long lawn enclosed on the outside by a picket fence with a backdrop of Monterey pines. A new wing was to have been added to Woods

School this year but the concentration of younger children in the southern part of the district demanded that River School should have priority in the building program. So, Woods School was quiet and woody and has only had necessary maintenance work done to ready it for September 6.

Back down through town to Sunset School in the center of Carmel, which accommodates children in grades five to eight, where the most noticeable work which has been done for the opening of the fall term is the painting of the two small frame buildings at the southern end of the campus a sky-blue. They looked bright and colorful against the dark green pines. Architect Elston reports that there has been interior reconstruction work done on the heating plant. The ever-necessary painting and repair work has been done also. There is nothing very startling about Sunset . . . it has just grown . . . like the city about it. It is the core of the Carmel school system. Sunset was the first school in the Carmel district proper, built before a high school was ever thought about. It houses the grades which are the center of the whole educational system, the pupils have graduated to it from the first four years at Woods and River schools, and will leave Sunset for four more years "on the Hill", otherwise known as the High School. Sunset sits in quiet, amused dignity, mixed up in architecture, and from the top of that high slate roof, we are sure a glimpse of the offshoots of Sunset School could be seen, the low modern, beautifully situated new schools on the outskirts of Carmel. Sunset is surrounded by all the informality of the design of Carmel and is just as informal in design itself. The hills can be seen to the south, the pine trees along the streets without sidewalks, except the one up and down San Carlos Street. Sunset is ready for pupils on September 6. It has been ready for years.

Following the path up the hill to the High School, we drove about what must be, one of the most beautiful high school campuses in the country. The football field is all green and fresh for the new term and the battles which will take place on it. The swimming pools are ready (and very much vacation-occupied on Tuesday afternoon). The broad expanse of Carmel Valley, the beaches, the river, Point Lobos, the hills rising one behind the other in the warm sunshine all formed a panorama, which, in its scope, illustrated the intangible asset of the Carmel School District which we mentioned at the beginning of this story. How fitting this view should be with the children during their last four years of Carmel schooling! All seemed ready, waiting for the life and excitement that will come on September 6.

In the office, we found that the staff was indeed preparing for opening day. Mrs. Mildred Riker, back from a two weeks vacation in Seattle, was tackling her end of the school business. Donald Craig, language teacher, quiet and humorous, was almost hidden behind piles of packages which contained some sort of material to be used when school opened, and must be sorted and stored. Stuart Mitchell, superintendent of the Carmel schools, was away, and Warren Edwards, High School principal, was at home, but a telephone call elicited the information from him that, although no new construction had taken place at the High School, it had been thoroughly cleaned, and the necessary painting and repair work done. All this is not apparent but consumes time and a lot of money.

The schools all seem to be ready for the schoolchildren, even River School where the saws and hammers will be heard for some months yet. Each plant has been prepared for the wear and tear of the coming school year, the intangible asset of the beautiful surroundings is waiting to be unconsciously appreciated, the faculties of the five plants will assemble in the next 18 days, all prepared, too. All we don't know is, if the children of Carmel are set for opening day on September 6. How about it, kids? Are you ready? Only 18 days left!

Dorothy Furuya Has One Man Exhibition At Artists Guild

The current exhibition at the Artists Guild of America Gallery is the one-man showing of 39 works (in oil) by the very talented Hawaiian artist, Dorothy Furuya. These paintings definitely show the foundation of an exceptionally fine academic background in Miss Furuya's training. Her art training began at the age of 17 under the private tutorship of Taeko Miyasaki, an eminent Honolulu artist. Later she attended the Cincinnati Art Academy for four years, then after one year at the Art Institute of Chicago, seeking academic training, she left for France (Paris) and during the years there she studied at both L'Academie Julian and at the Louvre Musee. She paints with deep rich colors, using palette knife occasionally.

Her Meditation depicting Fremont Extension Pond, Monterey, and among her Paris studies, Les Bateaux, Notre Dame and Sous Le Pont Mairie are outstanding for their clearly defined outline. Among the San Francisco subjects, Morning Song is a really magnificent canvas showing Stow Lake in Golden Gate Park in vibrant rich quality tones. The gay Nuages Blancs is the Ship Shawnee in Port San Francisco, and Les Montagnes, view overlooking the Presidio in San Francisco, in lovely delicate shade tones, is poetic in feeling. Dorothy Furuya possesses great merit and shows great strength in her work rarely seen in paintings executed by women. The artist has studios in Carmel, Sausalito and Honolulu.

It was a delight to view this exhibition, and those visiting the Artists Guild of America Galleries (open from 1:00 to 6:00 o'clock daily) will be well rewarded for the time spent there.—J.B.

TRAVELOGUE NO. 3

Revisiting Glacier National Park is always a delightful experience. This time we approached it by way of the east side of Flathead Lake, a new route for me. This is fruit-raising country, especially cherries, with many well-landscaped summer homes on the sloping shores of the large lake. It is quite in contrast with the rugged peaks of Glacier National Park adjoining it on the north.

Two days in the park, much of the time spent on business of the National Parks Association, was altogether inadequate to enjoy the scenery of this superb unit of our national park system. At the superintendent's office I was briefed on the latest developments in the Glacier View Dam controversy. This is a project, sparked by business interests in the nearby communities, to build a huge dam on the North Fork of the Flathead River. It would flood a considerable portion of the park, especially the winter range of many of the wild animals. Conservationists have so far been successful in fighting it off but a new attempt seems to be in the making to put it over. Eternal vigilance is necessary in this work.

One very pleasant experience here was breakfast at the ranger's cabin of Lloyd Parrat, an old friend of mine from Yosemite days. Lloyd, a summer naturalist, and his wife and three boys have been given living quarters in a cabin at Going-to-the-Sun on the shore of Upper St. Mary Lake, completely isolated from all human contacts. He has to pack in his supplies by back or canoe. A sylvan retreat of this kind makes a delightful summer for a busy school teacher.

From Glacier National Park we drove to Waterton Lakes National Park over the Canadian border. The international boundary passes through the middle of the lake and the southern portion belongs to Glacier National Park. At the town of Waterton an interview with Superintendent Atkinson of the Canadian park brought out the difference between the Canadian and American park systems. The tourist town of Waterton belongs to the Canadian government and business and private

A Glance Back As Wayfarer Church Moves Forward

By Grace C. Howden

Our charming little chapel at the Church of the Wayfarer is now in the process of being enlarged to accommodate the visitors and members on Sunday mornings. These Sundays when we are having two morning services in the Golden Bough Playhouse, many of us are recalling other days.

I was a member before Robert Stanton created our lovely chapel in 1940, and was in the building the day Dr. James E. Crowther added the old wood carving to make the altar which has become so familiar to us. On that Saturday and each week for several years I decorated that altar with flowers from Mrs. George Beardsley's garden. I remember looking up from my work one Saturday to see a distinguished looking man and his dog standing there. It was my introduction to General Joseph W. Stilwell and his schnauzer, Gary.

But now that we are in the playhouse on Sunday mornings there is no need for nostalgia and regret. Because of the sloping floor and good acoustics, we can both see and hear Dr. K. Fillmore Gray. The altar, pulpit, and organ have been taken there from the houses are leased to owners or operators on a 21 or 42-year basis.

A golf course with newly-built club house faces the foothills of the park mountains and is one of the superintendent's joys. Bathing beaches, speed-boating and sightseeing launches running the length of the lake are either encouraged or subsidized by the government. An unusually hot Sunday afternoon gave us an opportunity to see these activities at their peak.

This concept of subsidized sports within the national parks is entirely foreign to the American idea of preserving the scenery of the parks in a natural state for its enjoyment by visitors. The Canadian park system has no counterpart of the American ranger-naturalist service. Instead, it seems to be a blend of our city and state park systems, with the scenery thrown in as an added attraction.

chapel, so that the beauty for the eyes matches the beauty for the ears provided by Connell K. Carruth at the organ and the chapel singers, directed by John W. Farr.

It seems to all of us that in that setting we are still worshipping in the Church of the Wayfarer, a name which we recall came from the pageant The Wayfarer, written by Dr. Crowther. Members and friends are responding loyally to the new location and are glad to know that there are comfortable seats available to all who come.

Even as we remember the beautiful little chapel, built in 1940, we are happy that we have such a lovely setting for worship during the months of construction. And we look forward to the chapel which will be completed next spring, confident that it will be even more beautiful.

The Clash Of Color . . .

By HARRIET KEEN ROBERTS

Mr. Frank Elton, one of the three directors of The Monterey Institute for Foreign Studies, is giving a series of four talks on The Clash of Color. Three talks have been given; the last, Can Color Harmony Be Attained?, takes place this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the Golden Bough Theater-in-the-Round.

It is a terrible thing to watch one's own country and most of the rest of the world reaping the whirlwind of which one's English and European forebears sowed the wind. That wind was the greed whose expressions were slave ships or the colonial policy whose arrogance outweighed with the peoples of Asia, peoples often of much older civilizations and culture than our own, all the devoted and dedicated service of missionaries and the better kind of civil servant, the men immortalized in such stories as Kipling's The Head of the District and The Tomb of His Ancestors.

Mr. Elton did not soften his account of the tragic happenings of the past or of the dangers of the future, yet the whole effect of his talks is hopeful—in a long view. He looks with an understanding and sympathetic eye on both sides of the racial problems and struggles in Africa and Asia and on the events which have led up to them—on Apartheid and the Mau-Mau.

Though we can all recognize the basic physical differences of race, pigmentation of the skin, texture of the hair, shape of the eye-sockets and the skull which makes us divide the world into the white, black and yellow races, there are, among these divisions, such variety of traits and cultures that Mr. Elton's conclusion was that there is only one race, mankind.

Mr. Elton gave us fascinating examples of the variety of customs and cultures. We find tribesmen and women in the Andaman Islands saying "Yes", easily, to the suggestion of a friend who says, "I'd like to adopt this one of your children." Some English still believe that "Spare the rod and spoil the child" is a sound proverb. The Esquimaux consider that anyone barbarous enough to strike a child does not deserve to have one. Solomon Islanders indulge in infanticide and then steal older children, thus sparing themselves a child's troublesome early years, while to many Americans and Europeans the small child appears as, "Still trailing clouds of glory do we come, From God who is our home." In New Guinea girl babies are valued, as they can be sold when grown; in Tahiti they used to be regarded as of little value as they were not so good at fishing or war as men.

The aggressive drive is equally varied. In Bechuanaland men do not fight if they are unarmed. Some South American Indians beat a tree with sticks instead of beating their enemies. Physical anthropologists regard the plains Indians, who made war the center of their lives, as being of the same race as the Esquimaux, who were so horrified when they heard of our wars that they planned to send missionary medicine-men to us to teach us peace.

Mr. Elton promised to say little of the differences in sexual behavior, as he had "no wish to compete with Dr. Kinsey". He only pointed out that, in spite of enormous variety in the forms of marriage and the taboos connected with it among savage peoples, complete promiscuity is unknown. What rules there are, are strictly enforced. We modern Westerners, who idealize romantic love, would be horrified if a bride were loved because she could bring her husband "many Cadillacs", but a Zulu bride would be equally horrified at the thought that she was being married for love. That would mean that her family were not rich enough to supply an adequate dowry of cattle. Our newspapers have all too many accounts of murders and suicides caused by sexual jealousy; in some Australian and Esquimaux tribes wife lending is an ordinary

WATER - MUSIC

*There are no lovelier sounds than water makes,
The little lapping sibilants of lakes,
The liquid cadences within the wave that breaks,
And on the river's edge, the crystal bells that ring
In melting ice warmed by the touch of spring.
Of water-music, in the lands of drought, most loved of all
Is rain, the early, longed-for rain of Fall,
Rain, playing overhead on sloping, long roof-board,
Sweet to the ear as Bach's "well-tempered clavichord."*

—GLADYS HARVEY

RESOLVE IN SPRING

*Whenever spring declares you lilac-sane
And worthy of tall sun, select that day
To mark as the Romans did with a white stone.
Whatever place, with time brought quick to heel
And roots of April sweet to the tongue, condone
The shutter-click of cloud, the quick and cartridge
Burrowing of doubt. Join hands and say:
—We'll pledge our blood for living action-real
Before three hundred foxes run their stain
Through the vines and orchard olives, fur on furrow
Of pacing fire that plunders mortal grain.
We'll pledge the legendary cost, though Carthage
Burned and Ilium dying knew such sorrow.
Join arms and say: Though pearly with blood we'll keep
This common trust of life to the last sleep.*

—MARGARET LEWIS ALBANESE

THIS MOMENT

*The azalea leans its bloom
To the mirror of water.
The droop of maple
Reflects its leaves in calm expanse.
Ferns push against the rock,
The rock that walls the river's way.*

*Here flat of stones
Pillow the feet into the reach of sand.
Sand that beaches into the width of water.
Day cannot center its arrows
Into the coolness that is mine,
The coolness of peace,
Peace that culminates this moment.*

—MARY GUSTAFSON

act of courtesy and hospitality. Suicide is considered a "Nordic trait" yet in the old days in Japan it was "almost a way of life."

Mr. Elton believes that the modern concepts of race are rarely debated on their merits, but from emotion. The scientists have merely set down what they have observed. It is pressure groups of selfish people who have brought forward the idea of racial inferiority when they found that their way of life was threatened by the abolition of slavery in one country after another. Mr. Elton quoted Bryce as saying that until the French Revolution there was little self-conscious racial feeling. It grew from strife for land and plunder, not from ethnological differences. The 18th century considered themselves superior to the negro in a caste system, not in intelligence.

Greed is, of course, too simple an explanation of the unrest in Asia, which springs in part from cruel poverty and in part from a love of freedom and self-government which Western man has taught them, by example and by throwing our schools and universities open to Asian students. The inequalities which science and technical "know-how" have made between the white races and the colored have appeared only in the last hundred and fifty years.

Mr. Elton packed his talks on Black and White in Africa and Asian and European in the Far East with a wealth of historical detail. He made us see that though "Apartheid" is against "the trend of modern thought" it has its roots in such terrible memories as the massacre of the Dutch under Retief by the Zulus and the fear of a white people outnumbered 20 times by the blacks. The anger of the Mau-Mau in Kenya is partly that the highlands, made fertile by the white settlers, were the burial places of the Kikuyu—dead and also because negro students received as gentlemen and lawyers in England returned to find that in Kenya they could only be clerks under white civil servants who, perhaps, were less well-educated than they. This sort of frustration can cause a native to relapse into a not-far-away savagery. In contrast, the English have shown their usual talent for compromise in the Gold Coast and Nigeria, have given over the government to natives, and a white civil servant addresses a black one, if the latter is in a superior position, as "Sir." Liberia, founded as a home for freed slaves, now has a population of from two to three millions and is very pro-American, though it prefers settlers from the West Indies, since they are not used to so good a time as negroes from the United States, and so make better pioneers. Mr. Elton thinks the Belgian Congo the most efficiently run of the African colonies, where the black man has a higher standard of living. But he cannot leave the Congo and go to Oxford, for instance. He might get ideas.

In conclusion Mr. Elton thinks that there is danger of an explosion in the Union of South Africa and in Kenya, while there is at least a good chance of peace in the rest of Africa.

In Asia, which has more than half the population of the world, Mr. Elton thinks there is less violence than in Africa, but more resentment from peoples whose cultures and civilizations are older than that of their European colonizers. Mr. Elton compared the colonial policies of the Portuguese, French, Dutch and English. To summarize very briefly, the Portuguese, the first colonial power, were soon dispossessed by the Dutch and now have only Goa in India and Macao. The Dutch made enormous fortunes through the Dutch East Indian Company, and, in the end, tried to rule the East Indies justly and to encourage a federal government. They were successful technically and the East Indians had always enough to eat and their population increased from four millions in 1806 to 48 millions in 1948. But the Dutch had killed Indonesian initiative and this was a cause of hatred and a desire for revenge. There was a saying

Henry Chace

Henry Thurston Chace, who has been a Carmel resident for the past two years, died on Sunday morning at his Carmel Hills home, following a period of ill health.

Mr. Chace came here from Chicago upon his retirement from a distinguished career in the practice of law in Chicago, where he was born on July 25, 1875, in Hyde Park. He graduated from the University of Chicago in 1896 and then took up the study of law at the Chicago College of Law, now known as Kent College of Law, but his studies were interrupted by the Spanish-American War in which he served with the Illinois Cavalry with the rank of sergeant.

He finished his law courses at the close of the war and then opened offices in Chicago for the practice of general law, excluding criminal cases, which he maintained until his retirement two years ago. He was assistant district attorney for Chicago from 1916 to 1919.

During World War I, Mr. Chace was a captain in the Illinois Reserve Militia and in World War II was chairman of the advisory board of registration in Chicago's Fifth Ward.

He was a member of Camp William McKinley, United Spanish War Veteran's, South Park Lodge 662, AF and AM, the Chicago Bar Association, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Mr. Chace is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Payne of Quincy, Illinois, whom he married in 1915, and a sister, Miss Frances L. Chace of Chicago.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in All Saints' Church, the Reverend Angus Dun, Jr., officiating, followed by inurnment at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium in Pacific Grove. Pallbearers were Dr. Cuthbert T. Powell, Chester G. Strickland, Richard C. Goodspeed, Ernest Leffingwell, James McNeil and Arthur Holman.

Friends wishing to honor Mr. Chace's memory are asked by his family to do so in the form of contributions to the American Cancer Research Society, Box 1028, Monterey.

The Clash Of Color...

The British were a more casual government and knew when the time came to give up India.

The French desire is to impose their own excellent civilization on their colonies. They have no racial prejudices and wish to make all their natives into Frenchmen. They had the ill fortune, in Indo-

China, to come up against a civilization and culture older than their own.

Mr. Elton thinks that the Asians believe that scientific materialism is now running the world, and that, though they may not like us, they like our skills. He said he had it on good authority that Prime Minister Nehru is now advising Malaya not to try to be free until they are sure there is no danger from Communism.

Winifred Bowhay

The death of Miss Winifred Firth Bowhay occurred on Monday morning in a local hospital. Since last February she had made her home at Lincoln and Tenth streets. Previous to this she had spent a year and a half in Palo Alto after leaving Carmel, where she had lived for seven years, and been employed as secretary for several Carmel firms.

She was born on August 13, 1891, in Denver, Colorado. She leaves two brothers, Arnold A. Bowhay, Jr., of Pebble Beach and Leonard D. Bowhay of Burlingame, and several nieces and nephews.

Private funeral services were held on Tuesday morning in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium in Pacific Grove.

Alice Drainie

Miss Alice Drainie died on August 5 in Vancouver, British Columbia, where she had lived for the past 50 years. She was a sister of Mrs. John Clay who lived here for several years and during this time Miss Drainie made many friends in Carmel.

She was born in Fergus, Ontario, and studied nursing in Chicago and New York hospitals. During World War I she was matron of the Military Annex of Vancouver General Hospital.

She is survived by a brother, John Drainie of Vancouver.

Funeral services were held on August 8, followed by cremation.

Street Repair Work Program Underway

Two streets scheduled for blanket oil mix and berm on the 1955-56 gas tax street improvement program are completed, Torres from Ocean Avenue to Fifth; and Lincoln from Seventh to Santa Lucia. The fiscal year began July 1.

The schedule, submitted by Street Commission Francis Whitaker at a recent council meeting, includes Sixth Street from Torres to Carpenter; Santa Fe from Fifth to Sixth; Loop Road from Camino del Monte and Junipero to Third and Monte Verde (work is in progress there now) and surface repair of Seventh from Monte Verde to San Antonio.

Myrtle Wester

Mrs. Myrtle Victoria Wester died on Saturday evening of a cerebral hemorrhage at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Elias, where she and her husband, William Wester, have made their home since coming here two and a half years ago. Mrs. Wester was born in Chicago on April 24, 1895 and was married there on March 22, 1916.

Survivors, besides her husband and Mrs. Elias, are another daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Williams, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Fielding and Mrs. Joseph Moulden, all of Chicago; five grandchildren, Carol, Bruce and Kenneth Williams of Chicago and Barbara and Bobby Elias of Carmel.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, with the Reverend Donald Diltz, vacation pastor of Mayflower Church of Pacific Grove, officiating. Burial was in El Carmelo Cemetery. Pall bearers were Frederick Stanley, Jr., William Woolsey, Sherman Comings, George Abair, Robert Hutchinson and Ralph Penrose.

Most Californians, like the Longs, have added gas and electric servants over the years.

The average California home uses three times as much gas and electricity as twenty years ago. Naturally, your total bill is higher, but the average price of a kilowatt hour of electricity and a cubic foot of gas is about one-third less than in 1935 — thanks to mass production economies.

As a result, the Long's gas and electric bill in a recent month was $13.73. In 1935 the same amount would have cost over $18.00. And this same saving will most likely apply to your bill. Can you think of any other prices that are lower today than 20 years ago? No wonder we say...

Camille Weds Chester Sherer

The new chapel of the Church of the Wayfarer was decorated with white chrysanthemums and lighted by white candles in tall candelabra for the Thursday evening wedding of Camille Foster Pineau and Chester Henry Sherer, both of Los Angeles. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Charles Burrill and Charles H. Rawlins played the wedding music.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jennings of Carmel. Two years ago Thursday's bride had been the matron of honor at the Jennings' wedding and Professor Rawlins had also played the wedding music on that occasion.

The bride was dressed in a formal suit of poppy-red lace over taffeta and her corsage was three white butterfly orchids. The matron of honor wore a silver grey silk suit with blue accessories and a blue orchid in her hair.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings where the yellow decor was carried out with wedding bells, snapdragons and chrysanthemums. Wishing the couple happiness, besides the matron of honor and best man, were Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Jennings, Professor and Mrs. Charles H. Rawling and Reverend and Mrs. Charles H. Burrill, all of Carmel.

The bride and groom spent their honeymoon at the Highlands Inn.

Kahns At Shakespeare Festival

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kahn have been in Ashland, Oregon, attending the annual Shakespeare Festival. They were accompanied north by their son, David, who Beatrice Lehmann, senior year architecture student at Columbia University in New York, has been spending the summer on the peninsula with her husband, Ted, who is a student at the Army Language School. Beatrice has become interested in the development of craft centers in Carmel and the vicinity, such as the Carmel Craft Studios, and is planning to write the thesis for her bachelor's degree on this phase of Carmel life. She is at present gathering material on the subject which she has tentatively outlined.

Pat Merivale Leaves For Oxford

Patricia Merivale, after a summer attending the University of California and visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Merivale, left Sunday for her return trip to England where she will continue her studies at Lady Margaret Hall at Oxford University. Pat is the holder of a two-year graduate fellowship at Oxford and plans to study German literature. She has been at Oxford for the past two years, having previously attended Stanford University, and the University of California. She graduated from Carmel High School with the class of 1951 when she was chosen valedictorian by her classmates.

Honey Williams Flies Home

Monday afternoon, Honey Williams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Russell Williams, alighted from an airplane at Monterey airport with all the dignity of her nine years. She was returning from a visit in Los Angeles with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel James, and it was her first plane ride. Next she went to the Peninsula Community Annex to see her father, who, to quote Mrs. Williams, "is following one of his own prescriptions and taking a two weeks' complete rest." At home, Honey found her brother, Richard, recuperating from an operation. Everyone else was well, the everyone else being Mrs. Williams and John, and everyone had something to tell everyone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Millard will leave on Sunday for San Francisco, where they will meet Mr. Millard's mother, Mrs. Everett L. Among the correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is the following (180:25-27): "When man is governed by God, the ever-present Mind who understands all things, man knows that with God all things are possible."

Forest Guild Rehearsing Synge Play For Sept.

After a year the darkened main stage of the Forest Theater is alight again. The Forest Theater Guild is rehearsing John M. Synge's modern Irish classic, The Playboy of the Western World, to be presented the first and second week ends in September. This is the play with which the Dublin Players toured this country a year ago.

The Forest Theater production of Playboy is under the direction of Cole Weston who has such productions as Light Up The Sky and Gaslight, at the original Wharf Theatre, to his credit, as well as Riders to the Sea (also by Synge), Winterset, The Women, Escape, Baby Be Still (a musical), and Detective Story, all done at the Forest Theater either on the main stage or in the Workshop Theatre.

Included in the cast are Michael Monahan in the title role of the Playboy and Helen Weston as Pegeen. Monahan, recently returned to Carmel from service with the Navy in San Diego, was one of the authors and performers in the musical This Is It, That's The Ticket, and What The Dickens. He has performed locally in A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Forest Theater, in Fashion at the First Theatre and in Kiss Me, Kate and The Caine Mutiny Court Martial at the Wharf Theatre. While in Southern California he played in Mister Roberts and a number of other productions.

Helen Weston, wife of the director, has appeared in Romeo and Juliet and A Midsummer Night's Dream for her Shakespearean training and has done strong parts in Riders to the Sea, Winterset, Light Up The Sky, Gaslight, The Women and Escape.

Also listed in the cast is Walter Williams, recently seen in Yes, My Darling Daughter at the Golden Bough. Williams has been acting since the age of nine.

Other members of the cast include Edgar and Betsi Pye who have been seen at the Golden Bough Circle, Gracecarol Kearney of both Forest Theater and Golden Bough productions, Dan Coleman who has acted in the east, Floyd

Midshipman Niels Reimers was reported last week in the Pine Cone as being on a European cruise aboard the USS Wisconsin and this week the Navy sends this picture of Niels sighting a 40mm anti-aircraft gun aboard the vessel, no doubt preparing for the gunnery practice at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, which will end the cruise which Niels is making with Adams of Detective Story, and Ron Bostwick who has done technical work in productions in New Mexico and Southern California.
